RED TAPE IN FRANCE.

While Officials Are Tied Up With It the Statue of Puget Is Missing a Nose.

British red tape is bad to beat, but the record just now is with Paris. There the front of the Ecole des Beaux Arts is adorned with a statue of Puget, the once famous tutor. Four years ago a passerby made the discovery that the statue's nose had come off. He called the attention of the policeman on duty to the fact. The policeman reported to his brigadier, who reported to the commissary of the quarter, who reported to the prefecture of police. The prefecture of police decided that the nose had dropped off the statue and had not been maliciously knocked off. The matter therefore concerned the prefecture of the Seine. It was then August, 1891. In October a committee of three was appointed to decide which department had to put the nose on again. The committee inspected the statue in January, 1892, and reported in December that they were unable to report.

In February, 1893, this report reached the department of public works. The head of a room found it in June and made the lives of his subordinates so many burdens to them with it. Some how or other it got into print that but for this zealous official there would be hardly a statue in France and in Navarre with its nose on. In July he was decorated for special services. Somebody else took up the report. Between January and December, 1894, it had got into parliament. On Feb. 25, 1895, the house sat upon it, and MM. Jaures and Carnaud got off some virulent attacks upon the government for its want of public spirit. The next day the same passerby who had reported absence of the nose happened to pass by again. He discovered that the nose had not been replaced. He reported to the policeman on duty, who, etc. The nose of Puget is in for another round. —Pall Mall Gazette.

NOTICE.

To all Interested in Irrigation:

Under the auspices of the national irrigation congress, and of the irrigation commission for Utah, thereby inaugurated, there will be created a state association for Utah, the officers for which will be a president, two vice presidents, a secretary and treasurer. The governor of Utah to be ex-officio president of the association. There will be a county committee of five from each county who shall have general supervision of local or town associations.

The officers for each local or town association will be a president, a vice president and a corresponding secretary. The association immediately upon being formed will issue a call, by advertisement in Utah papers and otherwise, for all persons interested in irrigation, forestry and other general matters to become members.

The membership fee will be $1.00 per annum, payable in advance for which members will be entitled to receive a copy of all pamphlets and other literature issued by the association.

It shall be the duty of each member of this association to foster and promote the interests of irrigation matters in Utah, and the special duty of the county committees, and the local presidents, vice-presidents, and the corresponding secretaries thereof to promote the growth of the association by inviting all interested parties in their respective counties and towns to become members.

The corresponding secretaries will make monthly reports to the secretary of the association regarding crops, rainfall, canals, ditches, etc., according to instructions furnished them from the central office.

A Noble Woman.

Then I bade goodby to an honest, earnest woman who has given her life to a great cause. Abuse has not curdled the milk of human kindness flowing in her veins. Poverty has not embittered her generous soul. Susan B. Anthony, with her honorable 75 years, is more alive today than almost any woman of my acquaintance. Why? Because she is in love with a noble idea. Love begets enthusiasm. Enthusiasm keeps soul and body young. Blessed be that which makes the world go round!—Kate Field's Washington.
